

Christophe Hanon is the founder and director of ADINS. He works also as project manager and OpenERP consultant.

After his graduation in Computer sciences, he worked for international IT companies: Ungermann-Bass and Cisco Systems.

As ADINS, the company he created in 1995, he attempts to mix functional knowledge (project management, analysis, enterprise management) to solid technical skills (network, databases, programming).

For international customers, Christophe has also animated a large number of technical and commercial courses in Belgium and abroad.

This high level and transversal vision of IT as well his sense of services enable him to offer an integrated vision guaranteeing good continuity to his customers projects.

You will meet him frequently at the activities of OpenERP, the Chamber of Commerce Liège-Vervier-Namur and the Feweb.
